Hello everyone! Thank you for joining us today.
We are Team 1 in the EPICUR project Origami movie

It is an international collaboration between several universities.
In our group we have Boutros, Vincent and myself here at the Universite de Haute Alsace, then we have Claudia joining us from Vienna Austria at the BOKU – the University of Natural Resources and Applied Sciences, and we have Natalia at the Universite de Strasbourg

Today's meeting is our final sprint review
we will present our project topic, everyone's contributions and then we will watch the video we produced.

After that we will describe the EPICUR project management aspect including the organization and feedback

Slide 3
Our task is to create a short movie on a theme of ecology – highlighting an important issue
Our group chose the devastating effects of mountaintop mining – an issue linked to the over-production and consumption of mobile phones.

We created – Keppi the Okapi, the charming animal with striking features – a bit like a giraffe, a bit like a zebra. We chose her because she represents the dire situation of destruction of her habitat – a huge loss in biodiversity.
Our aim is to raise awareness of this issue and to recommend longer use of mobile phones in order to preserve these precious ecosystems.

Slide 4
Everyone in our group contributed to this project – this is an overall list of the tasks we worked on in order to produce our video.
Research, story, the origami and the background, and the video creation
- Now we will each present what he or she contributed to the project: Claudia, will begin – Claudia?
